@ph Francesco Ormando

Words are important. In this sentence there is the “who I am” and “what I do”. Words are not only surface and appearance, but they reveal ourselves as we really are. Who speaks and writes bad, thinks bad. My work is to play (not always in a funny way) with words, building effective communication strategies for companies in the field of fashion, luxury, travel, culture. My best skill is writing articles, books and every kind of text able to interpret the “who I am” of people, teaching to international students the work of a good communicator, make research on the fashion theme as a sign of individual and collective identity.
